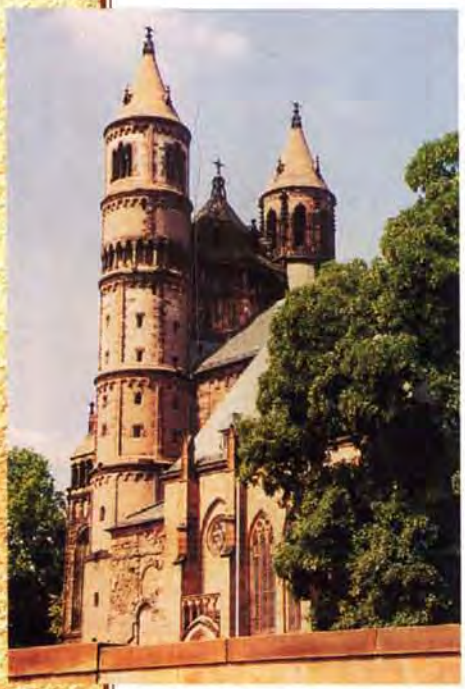
See the World, Get a Degree

"It's one thing to see something in a book," says Dr. Dwight Gustafson, dean emeritus of the School of Fine Arts and leader of the European Highlights Tour, "but it's another thing to really experience it. There is nothing that will supplant actually being there." From England to Italy, our faculty, students, and friends from all over the U.S. travel to Europe to gain experiences beyond what is offered in the classrooms. Take a whirlwind journey with four of BJU's most popular summer study tours.



Cathedral of Worms, Germany

The Investment

"Travel can be expensive, but I look at it as a tremendous lifelong investment," says Dr. Edward Panosian, chairman emeritus of the division of social science and leader of the Reformation History Tour. "Not just because of the pictures, but the experience of being there and recognizing the link with the past, which becomes more than just an academic exercise in the classroom."

These tours offer college credit for students who are interested, but college students aren't the only participants—grandparents, couples, pastors, high schoolers, and parents also enjoy the opportunities and experiences.

Reformation History Tour

the itinerary

This tour is a study tour of the history of the Protestant Reformation, which traces significant people from the 14th–19th centuries. "In 18 to 19 days, we cover five countries: Italy, Germany, Switzerland, France, and England. We trace the highlights of the places associated with the important names of the Reformation," Dr. Panosian says. "We start in Rome, and see Romanism at its height and origin, as well as Savonarola, in Italy, where we get a picture of Francis of Assisi, and the medieval monasticism against which the reformers revolted. From there we travel northward, to Constance, where John Huss was tried and burned. We meet Zwingli in Zurich, Luther in Worms, and Calvin in Geneva. Then we go through France to England and deal with the 18th century

Jewish Cemetery, Germany

THE BENEFITS

"One of the benefits of a tour like this is that you can ensure that you can see the major attractions and cover a lot of area at reasonable cost," says Dr. Stephen Preacher of the Business faculty and leader of the European Business Tour. "You also have the benefit of the tour company's leverage for negotiating better rates. An organized tour allows you to enjoy your experience with the fewest hassles."

THE DIFFERENCES

These tours are different from what you might find at other travel agencies. "All our tours are designed to be as all-inclusive as possible," Dr. Panosian says. "Ours are not inexpensive, but for the most part we put all the dollars up front. There will be no tipping, reformation with John Wesley and the Methodist movement, as well as the 19th century reformation and the work of Charles Spurgeon in London."

the experience

Dr. Panosian is the ongoing teacher and lecturer, but in each city they pick up local tour guides. "We discover that when the tour guides, who are accustomed to dealing with tourists who are not listening, see handheld notebooks and pens, they pull out all the stops," Dr. Panosian says. "The students get so much more than other tourists do. They also see spiritual benefits and blessings of being an American. Such simple things as refrigerated drinking fountains and ice cold drinks, things that we take for granted."

"We have a good time; it's not all work and we see the typical places that tourists go to see. But we also focus on a purposeful sense of direction, intellectual and spiritual," Dr. Panosian says. He particularly enjoys getting to know the students. "It's a delight for me every time I go."

Cathedral of Reims, France

senior organizational communications major

"It was so nice to be on the tour with Dr. Panosian. He was gracious and insightful, and we all enjoyed his and Mrs. Panosian's company.

"It's hard to have a favorite part, but being where John Huss was burned and where Martin Luther stood and knowing that was where these men risked their lives for us to have the truth was amazing to me. It really made me appreciate my Christian faith more. You hear about it all your life in Christian books, but it's not the same as being there.

no passing of the hat, nothing. We take care of all that."

Another difference is that you are traveling with a group of Christians. "You're never embarrassed or pressured into ethical question marks," Dr. Panosian says. "We don't go places where we're uncomfortable. We find things we can do and enjoy together without any compromise of testimony."

And they are a testimony. Although the tours are not mission trips, "we do take advantage of every opportunity we can for witness," Dr. Gustafson says.

Mayflower Tour

Dartmouth, England

"About ten years ago, my wife and I flew to London and rented a car and just drove," says Dr. David Beale of the Bible and church history faculty and leader of the Mayflower Tour. "We returned a couple of times and refined our travels and our research and then someone asked me to give a tour on the Mayflower. It was neat the way it worked out." In addition to the tour, this semester he will be writing a book about the Mayflower.

the tour

This tour covers England, Wales, and Holland, beginning in London. "The real heart of the Pilgrims' story is in the Midlands section of England," Dr. Beale says. "There you find the holy triangle: Austerfield, the birthplace of William Bradford; Babworth, where the Separatist movement originated; and Gainsborough, where they worshiped before they started the Church at Scrooby. Not to mention the Bunhill Fields Cemetery, with the graves of Susanna Wesley, Isaac Watts, John Bunyan, and other eminent nonconformists." From London we travel to Portsmouth, Southampton, and Dartmouth.

"It's not just the Mayflower," Dr. Beale says. "I tell people that you can enjoy this tour even if you have no interest in history. The Mayflower is the thread that ties it all together, but there's good opportunity for shopping and seeing the other tourist sights as well." Some of these include Stonehenge, the Rosetta Stone, the Mayflower Memorial, the Anne Frank House, the Salisbury Cathedral, Harrod's department store, the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace, and the rock that inspired the hymn "Rock of Ages." To find out more about the tour, you can visit Dr. Beale's website at www.searchandtravel.com.

St. Paul's Cathedral, London

the advice

"Be prepared for a spiritual feast of inspiration from learning of the lives of those men, women and children who paid the price for the freedom we enjoy today," Dr. Beale says. "It's tremendously inspiring. Be prepared to have a lot of fun too. Even people who have never been thrilled about history love this tour."

Lucerne, Switzerland

European Highlights Tour

Mayflower tourist—Brian Fernett,

Graduate Assistant, Master of Divinity

Stonehenge, England

"When you read about it in a book, you don't have an understanding of distances that people walked or how things really are, like the Rosetta Stone. It's massive; someone didn't just strap it on their back and carry it out of the desert. It broadens your horizons and perspective. You have a mental image of it.

"You can try to see it all and miss a lot, or you can pick and choose the things most important to you and sit there and really soak it up."

the overview

Dr. Gustafson has been giving this tour since the mid-1970s, but not always the same. "We have some variations, but generally I like to start in Brussels, Belgium," he says. "From there we go to the little towns of Bruges and Ghent, which are sort of the cradle of the Northern Renaissance. Bruges is called the 'Venice of the North,' and I like to spend the first night there. From there we go to Paris, then to Lucerne, Switzerland. In Paris we see all the tourist things and usually take in a concert or opera. We stay two nights in Florence. Then to Venice and then to Salzburg over the Italian Alps. We spend two nights in Salzburg, the city of Mozart's birth. From Salzburg one of my itineraries goes back to Munich, which is a cultural center in Germany, then to Heidelberg, Frankfurt and home. Another itinerary goes on into Eastern Europe—back to Vienna, to Prague, and then to Berlin."

Heidelberg, Germany

the tour

"There is much to see in Europe, and we arrange three or four special evening events on the tour," Dr. Gustafson says. "For example, last time we had a special Mozart concert dinner in Salzburg. After each course, the instrumentalists and singers performed in costume. For many people, it was a highlight of the tour."

THE ROTATION

The tours rotate on a roughly three-year cycle.

Summer 2000

Summer 2001

Dr. Dwight Gustafson–
European Highlights Tour

Dr. Stephen Preacher–
European Business Tour

Like Dr. Panosian, Dr. Gustafson also lectures throughout the tour, but these lectures are on European art, since it's mainly an art and music tour with a general European culture emphasis. "My selling point is that we see a lot of general tourists things that you would go to Europe to see, but we see those things in more depth because we usually stay two nights at each place," Dr. Gustafson says.

the outcome

"I come back with a greater realization of how young our country and our culture are," Dr. Gustafson says. "We talk about 250 years of American history, and in one breath the European tour guide talks about 2500 years of history. Also, for the first time it also gives the student an understanding of how much of the world there is out there that is not America—and how much of it needs the Gospel."

Bruges, Belgium

Notre Dame Cathedral, Paris

HIGHLIGHTS TOURIST— DAVID LOHNES.

Graduate Assistant, Master of Arts in English

"During the late Renaissance in England, a student's university education was not truly finished until he had taken a journey through many of the great cities he had studied in college. European Highlights was that sort of opportunity for me. I went to the great cities of Europe and saw some of the key icons of western culture. It was a way to round out my liberal arts education.

"My favorite part was Venice. We went on a gondola ride at night in the canals, and it was one of the most beautiful things I have ever seen. As we went we could see in some of the lighted windows and hear people laughing and see people eating. We were on the outside of Venetian life looking in. It was amazingly beautiful."

the purpose

"This tour is designed to acquaint business students with the inner workings of the European Union and its fifteen member states," says Dr. Preacher. "The idea is not only to catch the feeling of international business travel, but also to see the role that international business plays in the world economy." But this tour isn't just for business students. As with the other tours, there's so much to see and do, even those who aren't business majors in that particular field of interest can benefit from the trip and enjoy it.

"When you go to Europe you want to see as many well-known landmarks as possibly," Dr. Preacher says. "So we include a lot of those things to complement the business theme. It's versatile and flexible enough that anyone who wants to see Europe would enjoy the trip. We take several side trips which don't have any direct relationship to international business. But in reality, anything you can do to more fully understand a composite picture is very helpful when dealing with another culture. There really isn't anything that is unimportant."

the trip

"We started in London, which is an excellent leaping off place to make the adjustment to a foreign culture," Dr. Preacher says. "We saw the Bank of England and the stock exchange, and everyone particularly enjoyed the tour of Parliament given by Dr. Ian Paisley's personal secretary."

"After being in London for four days, we went through the underwater Chunnel across the English Channel. That took us directly to Brussels, Belgium," Dr. Preacher says. "From there we headed to the Netherlands and then Germany. In Frankfurt we toured the Central Bank of Europe, which is similar to our Federal Reserve Bank. Then we visited the German Stock Exchange. We also stopped in Zurich, Switzerland, which is a major center for international banking. From there we traveled to the heart of France and spent a day and a half in Dijon, and the tour culminated in Paris. Altogether, we visited seven countries."

Business Tourist— Pauline Shahinian.

senior international business major

"We were able to see places that most visitors couldn't see, such as the European Parliament in Belgium and the British Parliament. The European Parliament was very enlightening. I had heard about the European Union, but being there was different.

"The tour was two weeks long, and by the end I was looking forward to going home. But after I went home, I felt like I could do the whole thing again."

Brussels, Belgium

Rotterdam Harbor, Netherlands

the highlights

"The beautiful ambiance of the cities like Florence and Salzburg and Bruges are the highlights for me," Dr. Gustafson says. "Being in these European cities and actually seeing architecture and culture that has been the bedrock of the development of arts and sciences in the Western civilization is always very refreshing to me."

"I suppose for me it's the fact that you are witnessing history where it was made," Dr. Panosian says. "The Eiffel Tower, Big Ben, St. Paul's Cathedral, Notre Dame, these are all magnificent sights, but they don't do for me what those places associated with the men who counted not their lives dear unto themselves, but hazarded them for the Gospel's sake do for me. That gives purpose to travel."

"There are so many things that I really get excited about," Dr. Beale says. "One of the real highlights of our tour is the time we spend in Wales. I love Wales. We visit a medieval castle and attend a live program and dinner with medieval cooking and clothing. But London—who could tire of London? As Samuel Johnson once said, 'He who tires of London, tires of living.'"

Leeds Castle, England

the experience

"No matter how many times you go to any one of these cities, you see it in a new light," Dr. Preacher says. "There are too many sites to ever hope to visit. And every time you go, you leave knowing you want to go back and see something else you missed."

"I have never talked to a student who was sorry that he had invested the money," Dr. Gustafson says. "The chance to travel in Europe is a really broadening experience for you. And of course, it adds to your breadth as a Christian too."

"It's difficult to explain the value of the investment," Dr. Panosian says. "You have read about it, seen pictures and imagined how it looked, and now suddenly the theoretical has become the real for you."

Zaanse Schans, Holland

Advice for the Traveler

- Don't buy just "souvenirs"; buy something of value that you will use, not just something to dust.
- Pick up free things like hotel brochures and keep them for souvenirs.
- Take pictures; those also become your souvenirs. Make sure your camera is in good shape and has a new battery.
- Bring more film than you think you'll need.
- Research and read as much as you can before you go.
- Picture books purchased on site are a great investment.
- Be alert and observe the differences in culture, behavior, and way of life.
- Try to communicate with the people there, even if you don't speak their language.
- Take your time and soak it up. Rest when you get home; while you're there, absorb it all.
- Enjoy yourself!

History and Structure of the SAS

In 1957 Dr. Bob Jones Jr. established the Institute of Christian Service (ICS) for students who wanted to train for full-time Christian work, but for various reasons were not interested in or eligible for a regular BJU liberal arts degree. The ICS started with six students under the leadership of Dr. Ken Hay. This practical program became well established in the 1960s and continued to grow in the 1970s.

Recognizing a need to offer vocational education, Dr. Bob Jones III established the Institute of Christian Tradesmen (ICT) in 1979. This program made it possible for individuals to receive a vocational education within the spiritual and cultural atmosphere of Bob Jones University.

In January 1982, the ICS and the ICT merged to become the School of Applied Studies (SAS), which includes the Division of Christian Service and the Division of Business, Trades and Technology. The SAS offers two associate degrees and several certificate programs.

The primary thrust of the SAS is to teach students how to live for and serve the Lord while making a living. SAS graduates around the world are serving the Lord with "heart and hands" as carpenters, missionaries, child-care providers, auto-diesel mechanics, secretaries, cosmetologists, aviation mechanics, church leaders, pastors, farmers, entrepreneurs, youth leaders, evangelists, bookkeepers, office workers, and chefs.

SAS Faculty

Our 36 faculty members come from varied educational and work backgrounds, bringing both practical work experience and educational training to the classroom. Many of them have led mission teams, pastored churches, worked in radio ministries, and directed camps. As a result, the teachers provide students a quality learning experience with a spiritual emphasis.

Graduate Testimonies

Craig Baker—'89 Ministerial Training grad—pastor and church planter with Adirondack Baptist Church, Broadalbin, NY

After receiving the Lord as my personal Savior when I was almost 30, God spoke to my heart about the need to receive some type of Bible training at a Christian university. Having been out of school for approximately 16 years, I found the ministerial training program in the SAS both helpful and practical in my training for full-time Christian service. I was looking for as many Bible courses and electives as I could take in a short period of time; I found that at the SAS.

After graduating, I returned to New York, where I served as a deacon and a pastor-in-training, and taught junior and senior high in a Christian school. In December of 1991, I was ordained and became the assistant pastor of Grace Bible Church in Cohoes, where I was used by God to help start another church. Along with my current work at Adirondack Baptist Church, I am the founder and director of a newly formed ministry called "Churches Planting Churches," an outreach aimed at getting Fundamental, Bible-believing Baptist churches to support church planting in America.

Jody Colson—'82 Christian Leadership grad—missionary in the Chuuk Islands, Micronesia

My family and I have been serving the Lord with Baptist Mid-Missions for ten years. Our first field was Hawaii, where we served for almost six years. During these years in Hawaii, I traveled many times to the Chuuk Islands in Micronesia to hold evangelistic medical clinics. We were able to see many people come to Christ as a result of those trips. Now we work in the Chuuk Islands on the island of Weno. We have started Bible Baptist Church, and the Lord has blessed the work with many people being saved, baptized, and growing in Christ.

The years at the SAS and BJU were the years the Lord allowed me to be discipled and learn how to be a soul winner. I was saved as a freshman, and I still remember how glad I was to hear of the SAS program where I could learn about the Bible and apply what I was learning in practical ways. My memories of the teachers and training I received there have been a lifetime blessing.

Laurence Higdon—'82 Trade Management grad—field service technician for Elliott and Frantz, Inc., Hagerstown, MD

I left high school searching for a good trade school. After hearing of the SAS, I enrolled in the very first diesel and heavy equipment program. I was glad that a sound Christian institution had started this course of study, and the structured classes provided good technical information with hands-on opportunities. The daily chapel services, Bible classes, and fellowship with other Christians helped prepare me for my future service to the Lord.

My current job provides numerous opportunities to attend factory training centers for continued schooling. None of these has compared with the high caliber training that I received at the SAS.

Nancy Rebecca Bunch—'98 Child Care Ministries grad—kindergarten teacher at Greenbrier Christian Academy, Chesapeake, VA

As a kindergarten teacher here in Virginia, I am now putting to work what I learned in the SAS. As a student in the SAS, I feel I received the best training that anyone could receive. The teachers not only taught, but exhibited a genuine interest in their students. The many projects, files and papers were not just assignments, but insights into what we would be facing in our field.

Timothy Garren—'85 Christian Leadership grad—missionary to Nova Scotia, Canada

The Lord used my time as a student in the SAS to teach me many valuable lessons. That time gave me direction in my life; it also gave me a vision for missions, which was very important to the faculty. My heart was burdened for the lost because of their example in and out of the classroom. The classes have all been useful, from song leading to Christian home, and I am grateful for the godly teachers that the Lord allowed me to have. Each summer I went on a summer mission team, and the Lord directed me to Nova Scotia. Having served on the mission field for 13 years, I thank God for godly leadership, faithful prayers, and the solid foundation that the SAS gave me.

Christine Coles Johnson—'99 Child Care Ministries grad—teacher at the BJU Child Development Center, Greenville, SC

My training in the SAS child care ministries major has helped me tremendously in many areas, especially the vast amount I learned about child development. Just recently I used the knowledge that children's eyes don't develop fully until age six to help a child in my class who was having trouble using scissors to follow a black line on dark construction paper. I was able to see his need and help him.

Another benefit of the SAS training was the supervised field experience. Over the course of the program I accumulated several idea files, which I use frequently. The classes in the SAS are also smaller, which made it easier for me to build friendships with fellow students and to get to know my instructors better. The SAS is a great place to study and get prepared for your life's service for the Lord.

Undergraduate Baccalaureate Programs

The learning experience at the SAS does not have to end with an associate degree. Several Baccalaureate degree options are available at BJU as well:

BA in Practical Christian Training—available to associate degree graduates.

BA in Missionary Aviation—available in the Department of Missions in the School of Religion; combining Aircraft Maintenance and Flight Training.

BS in Aviation Management—available in the Division of Management in the School of Business Administration; building on the AAS in Aircraft Maintenance.

BS in Restaurant Management—available in the Division of Management in the School of Business Administration; building on the AAS in Culinary Arts.

BS in Agribusiness—available in the Division of Management in the School of Business Administration; building on the AAS in Farm Management.

Andrew and Gina Green—'94 Carpentry certificate grad and '92 Office Procedures/'93 Practical Christian Training grad—owners of Green's Custom Log Homes, Mayville, MI

Following our wedding in 1995, I worked in a carpenters' union in Frankenmuth, and because of the education I received in the SAS, I was immediately approved to receive my journeyman's card. Gina worked as an office manager/human resource coordinator for an automotive assembly plant in Oxford for three years. We knew we were utilizing the skills we gained from the SAS, but what we didn't know was to what magnitude they would be used in the future.

Then the Lord opened a door for us to start our own business. With a crew of 3–5 men, I build log homes year-round throughout the state of Michigan. As a general contractor and builder, I use the skills I learned in the SAS, such as speech, business, and of course, carpentry, on a daily basis when dealing with employees, homeowners, and vendors. Gina now stays at home with our daughter and continues to use her skills by doing payroll, bookkeeping, and communication with banks and homeowners.

With more than 70 years of history behind us, the University looks forward to the future with confidence in the calling and grace of God.

The University's steadfastness in the faith and to a course consistent with the founder's purposes is of utmost importance to the new generation of faculty and administrative leadership that the Lord is raising up to take the University into the 21st century, if He tarries.

I'm immeasurably grateful to God for the men and women He is calling to be the future leadership of BJU. In order to give you, our praying friends, the opportunity to meet the next generation of leaders whom God is raising up, we are running a series of testimonies. Below is the sixth installment in that series. —Bob Jones III

The President's Corner

"Like it or not, you will have to live somewhere forever; so you had better learn how to live." The truth of this saying by Dr. Bob Jones Sr. dominated his life and thrust him into founding Bob Jones University for the purpose of teaching Christian young people "not only how to make a living but how to live." Having grown up on this campus, I had this and many other truths thoroughly embedded in my soul through chapel exhortations and classroom instruction, and I have seen them demonstrated in the daily service of faculty and staff who have invested their lives in the ministry of BJU. But it was not until the Lord provided the opportunity for me to join the University staff that I recognized this as the constant driving force of BJU. By the grace of God, the school has been sustained through the dedicated labors of godly men and women who knew the founder and understood his purpose. It is through these faithful men and women that I too have caught the founder's vision that has given me a burning desire to preserve the school's original direction.

The distinctions of quality education, Christian character building, spiritual development, and emphasis on evangelism have set BJU apart from other Christian institutions and are inseparable ingredients in accomplishing our purpose and in the development of our product. Our methods and services will continually be evaluated, modified, and changed to provide an education which excels that of other colleges, but we will not move from the original intentions of the founder.

The need for the BJU product becomes more obvious each day as the world continues its downward plunge and as Christianity succumbs more and more to the influences of the world. As a member of the present and future leadership team of BJU, I pledge my determination to be ever vigilant and fortified by the Word of God to combat Satan's attacks from within and without and to do all I can to preserve that which God has maintained here for over seventy years. —Dan Smith

Dan Smith graduated from BJU in 1981 with a bachelor of science degree in social studies education. In '83 he received a master of science degree in educational administration and supervision. He is now the registrar at BJU.

WBJU is unique among student organization at BJU–it's actually a class, a radio station, a TV station, and a daily news website all rolled into one,. which adds up to a valuable learning experience.

David Nichols, senior Radio and Television (RTV) major and WBJU program director, and the rest of the WBJU staff produce radio broadcasts that start at 6:55 in the morning. During class hours there is automated music, but when 6 p.m. rolls around they're on the air, live, again. WBJU also produces several "specials" throughout the year, including two all-day Saturday variety shows, an election program, and broadcasts for both the soccer and basketball championships.

While WBJU radio has been on the air at BJU since 1966, WBJU-TV is a newer addition. The TV station currently broadcasts daily news and sports reports to the campus Snack Shop and rooms in the Mary Gaston and Johnson dorms. "With our expanded facilities in the new Fine Arts Center we are hoping to do more," says Mr. Dave Lurtey, head of the RTV Department.

"We consider WBJU to be a practical hands-on lab application of the theory that we are teaching in the RTV classrooms," Mr. Lurtey says. "We use the radio to give students experience in reading news copy, doing interviews, and playing music on a schedule. There is something about having to constantly fill air time that can't be taught in a classroom."

And that is exactly what David Nichols and his crew do. They run the radio station and air morning and evening programs–from light-hearted music and listener contests, to sports talk shows, to news and weather, to interviews with extension groups and mission teams. According to David, the best part is getting to work with a lot of people.

Both WBJU-FM and WBJU-TV provide quality practice time for the students, as will WBJU-Online, a new media outreach being introduced this year. "It's a lot of real-world experience," David Nichols says. "After just a year and a half of my studies here, I was told that I had a lot more experience than many of the people that radio stations hire. This is training that you can use–principles you can learn and apply to the various types of equipment you'll see out there in the industry."

Don't forget to tune in!

modern language club

The Modern Language Club is the only Student Body Organization that comprises several smaller groups. From Club de Espanol, to Club de Francais, to Deutsch Klub, Modern Language Club is a club of diversity. Like WBJU, this club is also academic–it supports the language classes and even counts as lab time, which is a bonus to the language majors and minors.

"In club we do different presentations, games, songs and special speakers–anything to do with our language," says Tali Hurd, junior Spanish major and vice president of Spanish Club.

"We try to keep variety in the meetings," says Sarah Crosby, senior French major and vice president of French Club. "And you don't even have to be taking a language class to come to club."

"I think the neatest thing is being able to use our foreign language skills," says Anne Bailey, senior piano performance major and president of the Modern Language Club. "Even those who are just beginning with the language can learn more. We try to mix the foreign language with English, and most of the games require little knowledge of the language, so even beginners can catch on quickly."

"In French Club, for example we translate important parts of the club for people who are just starting," Sarah says. "We try to reach a balance between beginners and fluent speakers. I think the practical experience in language is the most valuable part of the clubs.

"Speaking the language is the hardest part of foreign language skills," says Monica Wall, junior German major and vice president of German Club. "You just have to stop worrying about what people are thinking of you and talk. Club helps you do that."

Since each club is headed by a separate vice president, the clubs are a little different from each other and have different goals. "My goal this year is to teach vocabulary to the students, pick a theme for each club and try to build vocabulary in games and songs–even incorporate the theme in the scriptural challenge if possible," Sarah says.

"My goal for the German Club is to help students use the words that they know," Monica says. "We help the first semester German students get more involved and excited about the language. And the old German students make new friends."

"I would like for all of the clubs to make sure that their focus is not so much on intellectual development, but on realizing that language studies can help us fulfill the Great Commission," Anne says. "If I'm just learning French so I can read great works of literature, that's not going to count for eternity."

This is the seventh and final article in a series on student-led extracurricular organizations at BJU and those who run them.

THE TALE of

From Cyprus to Oklahoma, the list of students at Bob Jones University covers a great deal of geographical ground. Of course you won't have many students from Cyprus driving their cars to campus, but on a sunny September morning this fall, we found nearly all 50 states, as well as several Canadian provinces, represented in the students' colorful license plates. (Anyone for a 108-hour drive from Alaska to South Carolina?)

college financing tips

turn of the century club

For years Bob Jones University has been offering parents and grandparents a savings of thousands of dollars in room, board, and tuition costs. If you have a child or grandchild who will become a college freshman between the years 2002 and 2011, you're eligible. Bob Jones University can help you save as much as $9,960!

It's called the Turn-of-the-Century Club and it offers parents and grandparents the chance to pay now and save later. The way the Club works is simple. Pre-pay your child's or grandchild's first year, first two years, first three years, or all four years of tuition, room, and board during the next 24 months at the 1999-2000 rate.

If you wait until he starts college, you can expect to pay 20–100% more than the current rate. A year of college at BJU could cost only $9,960 now instead of as much as $19,920 in the future. It's no wonder the cost of a college education is one of the fastest-growing expenses facing today's families.

This offer is not limited to one child per family, and there is no risk! If for some reason the student is unable to attend BJU, every penny you have paid will be refunded to you. So there's nothing to lose, except time if you wait. This offer is only good at these rates from January 1 through May 31, 2000. So don't waste any time! Join today and give your child or grandchild the best gift of all—a promising future.

If you would like a brochure with complete information about the Turn-of-the-Century Club and payment schedules, just fill out and mail in the response card in the middle of the BJU Review, or call us at (864) 242-5100, Ext. 3020.
